

Homework expectations for pupils and parents

History

The History Department supports the principles and guidelines contained within the Tring School Home Learning Policy.

At KS4 and 5 pupils can expect to get at least one past examination question and one test on subject content every four weeks. For past examination questions any pupil obtaining a result more than a grade lower than their target grade will be required to re-do part or all of the question, depending on their teachers intuition.

In addition to the above there are also likely to be other occasional exercises such as independent research, note taking, presentation preparation etc.

At KS5 there will also be set reading and writing coursework. All students will be issued with a coursework booklet explaining guidelines.

At KS3 pupils will be set homework where necessary, in general it will be once a week. The activities could include independent research; preparing posters, presentations and speeches; completing worksheets etc. Students will do on average one assessment per half term which might require extra homework.
