Dear Parents/ Carers,

I thought I would share with you in a separate letter, information which I have just received about another member of staff who is leaving Tring School - Mr Chris Evans. He has been a Science teacher for just over three years, but due to extensive health issues has not been in school for significant periods of time.

His ill health has affected the continuity of learning and teaching. I know many students were fond of Mr Evans and there may be some of you who will also sympathise with the plight he has faced with his health. However, we are now in a position to move forward and soon we will advertise and appoint another substantive colleague to the Science team; this is a very positive step forward. Mr Evans has already been temporarily replaced with Mr Roslyn.

Meanwhile, our Science team are working hard and are continually developing the quality of materials they are delivering in class. They have also introduced much more rigorous setting this term and are regularly assessing and benchmarking the students to ensure they are achieving what is expected. With the likelihood of two new Science teachers to join the department and another new technician, the future is very bright for this improving department.

Once again, I'd like to take this moment to wish you a restful and peaceful holiday.

Kind regards

Sue Collings
Headteacher
